

AGRICULTURE DEVELOPMENT GROUP

Independent Agriculture Research and Consulting Service, Pasco WA

Wanted: Research Associate

Agriculture Development Group, Inc., is an independent agriculture research and consulting service based in Eltopia, Washington. The company provides research and development services to commodity groups, government agencies, pest management companies and other entities with an interest in agrichemical and environmental issues. ADG conducts field research on a wide array of PNW crops, with an emphasis in pest management research. Field research is based at its 140 acre research farm in the lower Columbia Basin.

We are currently seeking a research associate. The primary responsibility for this person is to work with the Company President and the Production staff to carry out a diverse array of agronomic and pest management research projects. Other responsibilities include small and large plot applications and support of off-site research projects.

The successful candidate must have a valid drivers license, be physically fit (able to lift 75 pounds), the ability to communicate well verbally and in written form, and either have or be able to obtain within 3 months of starting, a pesticide applicator license. The applicant should ideally have a B.S. degree in applied agricultural, pest management or related discipline and at least some experience in agricultural research. Experience in ag research or related field will be considered in lieu of a degree. Experience with potatoes, tree fruit, grapes and/or row crops is desired, but not required. During peak season extended hours are necessary. This position is available immediately.

Salary is negotiable. ADG offers paid vacation and sick leave, medical insurance and a retirement plan. Additional work incentives are available. Our company is small, growing, friendly and determined to generate success for our owners, employees and clients.
